Dormitory Rules & Responsibilities for Chaperones & Adults

- ASSIGNED BEDS: Everyone staying in the dormitory is assigned a specific bed for ease of location for delivery of messages or in case of an emergency. Members of your delegation must remain in assigned beds throughout their stay. If a move is absolutely necessary, contact the dorm superintendent.
- BED CHECK: As the chaperone, check that all members of your group are in at the posted hour. Doors will be closed at the posted time. Notify the dorm superintendent immediately if anyone is missing so that proper action can be taken. DO NOT open dormitory doors for late individuals. Report any violations to the dorm superintendent.
- SPECIAL HOURS: Only the dorm superintendent can grant late hours to individuals showing livestock, feeding, caring for sick animals, etc. Be certain the dorm superintendent is contacted ahead of time and arrangements are made so members can take care of their responsibilities and still get back into the dormitory after the doors are locked.
- QUIET: Please see that your delegation remains quiet after lights out. Sleep is difficult at best, and most delegates have responsibilities they must carry out the next day. Individuals wanting to dress before lights on should confine themselves to the shower area. Infants/young children crying excessively and running through the dorms is upsetting to everyone. Please control younger members of your group/family. The dormitory setting is often not suitable for infants/toddlers. Please consider this before bringing them.
- CLEANLINESS: Please have your delegates clean the area around their beds and the alley each day and when they check out of the dorm. Inspections are made of the dorms on an unannounced basis and are often visited by state legislators. Cleanliness is important. (Brooms and dust pans are kept in the store room.)
- DORM SITTING: The dorm superintendent needs some help with "dorm sitting" - keeping the dorms open for use by delegates, but closed for general public use. Please sign up with the dorm superintendent for a time when you are free. If we don't receive volunteer help, we will need to lock the doors during the day which will be very inconvenient for some participants.
- ALARM CLOCKS: Each delegate must bring their own alarm clock and be responsible for being up on time to attend their own scheduled functions. Please turn off alarm radio/buzzer immediately after awakening.
- CHECK OUT: Every person, adult or youth, MUST be checked out of the dorm, first through the dorm superintendent and then the 4-H Camp Tobin office. If you are responsible for a large delegation, it is suggested that one person check out for the entire group. To help in the management of available bed space, check out is requested as early as possible on the day you are leaving. If you need to store baggage until you finish a contest, check with the dorm superintendent.
- ILLNESS/INJURY: Contact chaperone, dorm superintendent or the Camp Tobin office immediately to facilitate treatment. Injuries/illness not reported and immediately treated will not be covered by insurance.
- DAMAGE CLAUSE: Physical damages to 4-H Camp Tobin property will be charged to the individual responsible for causing the damage.
- ANIMALS: For health reasons no dogs are permitted in the dormitories.

With your cooperation, your stay at Colorado State Fair can be a rewarding experience for all.
